

Politics And History Trip to Kenilworth and Brinklow Castles

Our pupils, once again, were exemplary. They really are a pleasure to take on a trip-how many schools can say that these days? Numerous visitors to the castle from all over the world complimented them on their manners and their smartness-and, above all, their interest in learning. Marvellous. Do ask them to take you on a guided tour of both castles. They will do a splendid job. I think the best time to visit Kenilworth is at dawn –when the early morning mist seems to form those huge defensive lakes surrounding the sandstone walls-and the shrieks of the Corn Crakes resemble the agonised cries of the soldiers besieged within those walls. It's also a nice place for a picnic!
